PHONE EMPLOYEES ASSEMBLE TO HEAR SPEAKERS OF NOTE

16,000 Men and Women Assemble in 19 Cities in Penna. and Delaware

25 GO FROM BRISTOL

Group From This Area Attend Rally Held At Norristown

Twenty-five local telephone employees were among the Bell Telephone Company's 16,000 men and women who assembled last night at 19 cities in Pennsylvania and Delaware for the company's huge two-State rally for national defense.

Every telephone worker except the night operating and maintenance staffs attended the rallies which were united by microphones and loudspeakers connected to a telephone network. Total attendance was swelled to about 25,000 by relatives of employees at the three largest rallies.

The telephone network brought to the rallies the voices of high-ranking Government, industrial, military and telephone officials who spoke from Pittsburgh, Harrisburg and Philadelphia. The speakers underscored the challenge confronting the telephone organization today and emphasized the importance of a dependable, speedy telephone communication system during the present national emergency.

The local Bell employees attended the meeting at the Stewart Armory, Norristown, where there was a total of nearly 1,000 present. In addition to the employees, there were several guests in the audience. Guests included:

Walter L. Sanborn, North Penn Reporter; Serrill D. Detlefson, Bristol Courier; W. A. Wilson, Norristown Times-Herald; E. J. Breese, Phoenixville Daily Republican; George S. Hotchkiss, Doylestown Intelligencer; W. A. Kner, secretary, Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association of Montgomery County; and Thornton Lewis, chairman, Bucks County Council of Defense.

The speakers included William H. Harrison, production director for the Office of Production Management; Brigadier General Dawson Olmstead, Acting Chief Signal Officer, U. S. Army; Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, Commandant of the Fourth Naval District and Commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard; and Andrew W. Robertson, chairman of the board, West.

Bristol Twp. Man Admits Involvement in Accident

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 9.—A Bristol Township man, Ernest Tiedman, 23, Bristol R. D. No. 1, was released under $800 bail yesterday, at a hearing held before Justice of the Peace Neal Nolan, here.

Tiedman, according to police, admitted that it was his car which struck and critically wounded David Lukens, 80, of Moreau street, last Thursday night.

The hearing was held at the office of Nolan, here.

Tiedman, who took Lukens to a Trenton hospital, first told Radio Patrolman Lebergern that he found the victim lying in the street. After being arraigned before Justice Nolan, Chief of Police Cooper and Patrolman Lebergern said Tiedman admitted to them that he had struck Lukens while the latter was crossing North Pennsylvania avenue.

Curtail Construction

Washington, Oct. 9.—The government today promulgated a new policy aimed at suspending all new and non-essential public and private construction which would deplete the supply of defense material.

The policy was outlined by President Roosevelt's Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, and the office of production management was directed to put it into effect at once.

A board's statement explained that no public or private construction project which uses material such as steel, copper, brass, bronze, aluminum, etc., may be started during the emergency unless it is either necessary for direct national defense, or essential to public health and safety.

This applies to public property—federal, state and local—such as post offices, court houses and similar structures.

Man Wounded in Dice Game Hold-Up

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—Edmund Terranova, 26, was wounded today when four men held up what police described as a "roving" dice game in the rear room of a South Philadelphia house. The bandits lined up about 20 men present and rifled their pockets of several thousand dollars, detectives learned.

Russian Army Makes Great Stand

Moscow, Oct. 9.—Russia's huge armies rose up in all the fury of a last-ditch stand today to stem the crushing German offensive on the central front.

The Red Army newspaper reported that a German attempt to reach and capture the town of Vyazma, 140 miles west of Moscow, had failed in the face of the desperate Russian resistance.

Soviet advices to Moscow likewise reported that since yesterday the Nazi legions have been trying to batter their way northward from Orel, 200 miles south of the Russian capital.

Tank battles are now in progress in the Orel district, these dispatches said, while a new German push was launched yesterday in the region of Bryansk.

Vocal solos will be given by Miss Frances Kooker, Quakertown. Luncheon will be served at the country club.

UNVEIL MEMORIAL HONORING J. HARRY HOFFMAN AT SESSION OF INSTITUTE

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—The Bucks County Teachers Institute opened here yesterday and the first day's program was featured by the dedication of a memorial to the late J. Harry Hoffman.

"From time immemorial monuments have been erected of stone and marble but never have I known of a more lovely thought and suitable memorial than a painting by Pennsylvania's distinguished artist, Walter E. Baum, of Sellersville."

With this remark made by Dr. Valentine Kirby, Director of Art of the Department of Public Instruction, a memorial to the late County Superintendent of Schools, was unveiled by the widow of the late educator, Mrs. Hoffman, of Doylestown.

The painting is one of artist Baum's favorite Bucks county scenes, and will be placed in the Bucks County Educational Building.

Close to one thousand persons witnessed the impressive ceremony, presided over by Hollis Lachar, of Doylestown, president of the teachers' association.

Invocation was pronounced by Wal-

Announcement was made at a meeting of the Doylestown school board, Monday evening, that a janitors' school will be held eight times a year in the school building here during the year.

J. Leonard Halderman, head of the school, explained that Warren Elville, head janitor of the local school, will be in charge since he attended a janitors' school at Pennsylvania State College during the summer.

Janitors from the surrounding schools will be invited to attend the school which will meet on eight different dates to be announced later.

TO HOUSE REFUGEES IN BUCKS IF AREA IS BOMBED

Col. Churchill Williams Tells of Plans in Event of "Token" Bombings

1600 PLEDGE SHELTER

Plans have been made to house refugees in Bucks County should such cities as Philadelphia or New York have "token" bombs dropped on them. The plans have been under the supervision of Col. Churchill Williams, U. S. Army, retired, Doylestown.

In charge of the plans for possible refugees Colonel Williams makes no bones about the probability of a token bombing. His theories on scrambled morale are not from textbooks. During the World War his specialty was analyzing the status of enemy morale for the intelligence division of the U. S. Army General Staff. He retired in 1933.

"I'm expressing this opinion as an individual, not as a member of the council," he said. "I also want it understood that I'm not an alarmist—but we must face the facts."

"This type of token bombing would probably not occur until we were on the verge of actively engaging in the war—say after a few more of our ships were sunk, and the public demanded action."

"A few bombs dropped on New York city would cause an uproar from powerful Gothamites for better protection of the metropolitan area and the seaboard. Part of our Pacific fleet would be transferred to the Atlantic, and with the Pacific forces thus weakened, Hitler would give the high sign to Japan to begin hostilities."

"Even if Japan failed to figure in such a maneuver, a token bombing of New York would create tremendous confusion, and set up diversion to screen any action of the enemy against us."

"We hope and pray that our machinery for refugees will never be used, but we are prepared for such an emergency."

For several months the registration of emergency shelters among Bucks county homes has been under way by Boy Scouts and volunteer women's groups.

To date 1,600 families have pledged their homes for such work, and more registrations are expected during the current month. In each household the number of extra beds is listed.

"We are not planning to actually house refugees in the county," said Colonel Williams, "but plan to give them shelter for the night as they pass through to more isolated sections. If the residents want to keep the evacuees, however, that is entirely up to them."

"We realize that many of the persons

A four-part quiz relating to automobiles was a feature of the Chalfont Grange meeting this week. Owners of cars were asked to tell their auto license numbers, and very few were able to do so.

Mrs. Leroy Shutt was the first local Granger to own an automobile, she purchasing one in 1913.

Chester C. Martin, Grange master, was in charge of business.

With 94 of the 97 volunteers at their assigned posts throughout the entire township, the auxiliary emergency police of Plumstead township were given their official inspection on Monday.

Some of the volunteers remained at their assigned posts almost four hours before the inspectors completed their rounds. The inspection was made by Col. Churchill Williams, of the Bucks County Council of Defense; District Chief W. Paxson Bishop, area chief Felix R. Gowan, Doylestown, and zone chief C. Clifford Beck, also of Doylestown.

Presiding for the first time since his installation as commander of the Albert R. Atkinson, Jr., Post, No. 210, A. L., Doylestown, William A. May, at a meeting of the post on Monday evening, was greeted by an unusually large attendance of members and guests, included among the latter being two representatives of the British Navy. Both veterans of the World War, they were Chief Petty Officer H. E. Courtage, Portchester (England), and Chief Petty Officer James Deakens, Denmead, England.

Tall and robust, these men, both of whom are about 45 years of age, served in the British Navy during the World War. They took part in the memorable Battle of Jutland and served in company with American squadrons during the World War.

After their enlistments in the British Navy expired, they returned to civilian life, but were recalled into the service at the outbreak of current hostilities abroad. Members of the crew of the H. M. S. Manchester, these men are at present located in Philadelphia, while the Manchester is undergoing repairs. They were taken to the meeting by Legionnaire Frank Paul, who is employed in the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

During the evening the guests spoke briefly, but refrained from telling of their experiences aboard the H. M. S. Manchester.

ORGANIZE JUNIOR POLICE IN PERKASIE BOROUGH

Will Handle Preliminary Details In Registering All Bicycles

HAD FATAL ACCIDENT

PERKASIE, Oct. 9.—A junior police force of about 40 boys is being organized here by Constable Harvey Wambold of the first ward. These boys will assist in the registration of all bicycles which are to be licensed beginning January 1st. Council will also seek the co-operation of the local schools in the registration of the wheels.

Steps toward the licensing of all bicycles in this borough after January 1st were taken at the monthly meeting of Borough Council. Several weeks ago a child in this borough was fatally injured in an accident while riding his bicycle, and there have been a number of minor accidents.

During the evening the question of full-time police service in the borough was considered, and it was decided to take action on this matter at the next meeting on Monday evening, November 3rd.

Upon the recommendation of Burgess Harleigh M. Apple, Constable Harvey Wambold was approved by Council to serve as a police officer during the absence of Chief of Police James Schatz, who is improving in Sacred Heart Hospital, Allentown, after having undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Two petitions, one relating to a smoke nuisance and the other in reference to zoning, were presented before Council. Signed by residents in the vicinity of Fourth and Chestnut streets, the one petition asked that Council take steps toward the elimination of a smoke nuisance in that section, but Council replied that it has no jurisdiction over the matter.

The other petition was signed by 12 residents on Fifth street, between Elm and Park avenue, who asked that the zoning ordinance be revised to change that particular block from a residential to business section. Council fixed Monday evening, November 3rd, as a time for a public hearing on this matter.

LEAVES FOR CANAL ZONE

Private Joseph Johnson, a resident of 322 Cleveland street, and who has been located at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, left yesterday for the Panama Canal Zone, where he expects to remain until 1943.

Motorist's Wrist Hurt When Automobiles Crash

Two cars crashed on Pond street, near Taylor, last night, and one of the drivers sustained an injured wrist. The accident occurred at about 9.15, when a car operated by Arthur W. Lehman, 220 E. Ashland street, Doylestown, and one driven by James E. Rielly, Jr., Bristol Township, collided.

According to the police, Lehman was driving west on Pond street and went to make a left turn into a driveway. The car operated by Rielly was also traveling west in Pond street and attempted to pass the Lehman car as Lehman started to make the turn.

Rielly's wrist was injured and both cars were considerably damaged. Sergeant Ferry and Officer Sackville investigated.

SCOUT FINANCE DRIVE MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

A Total of $5,100 Was Reported At Recent Meetings

AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Walter W. Pitzonka, president of the Bucks County Council Boy Scouts of America announced today the finance campaign for maintenance funds for the council was progressing satisfactorily and that at recent report meetings in Quakertown and Bristol, $5,100 has been reported which was slightly ahead of these reports a year ago. The closing dinner for the campaign will be held on Tuesday, October 14th, at the Buckingham Grange at 7.30 p. m. Colored moving pictures of the council camp and new swimming pool will be shown.

Mr. Pitzonka also reported that the Bucks County Council, in line with 544 other councils in the United States, has been asked by the United States Government to request its membership to help in the salvaging of old newspapers and magazines which are needed for the manufacture of paper board cartons for defense purposes.

There is an acute shortage of cartons in the country. Mr. Pitzonka further pointed out that it was not the intention of the local scouts to compete with civic organizations such as the Salvation Army, but rather to supplement their collections from sources that are not now touched. Mr. Pitzonka emphasized the fact that Scouts collecting such papers may sell them for their camp savings fund or for whatever charitable purpose they, or their Troop, may decide upon.

In line with health official's advice, troops and packs may now resume meetings which had been suspended by the council at the time of the first threat of an infantile paralysis epidemic.

Mothers' Ass'n Hears A Fine Program of Music

The October meeting of the Mothers' Association of Bristol public schools was held last evening in the high school auditorium, with Mrs. Earl McEuen presiding.

Plans for the card party to be held October 23rd were completed. Mrs. Harry Sutton, Jr., chairman of the entertainment committee for the evening, announced the following numbers: Vocal solos, Isabelle Heath; accordion selections, Janice McEuen; piano solos, Dorothy Eelman.

Refreshments were served by the committee, with Mrs. Maurice Roche as chairman.

Grass Fires Keep The Firemen On The Jump

Bristol Consolidated firemen were called out four times yesterday to extinguish grass fires.

Grass at Venice avenue, McKinley street and Farragut avenue, Greenlane near the Wetherill Lumber Yard and along the Bristol Pike, south of Mill street, were the locations where blazing grass kept the firemen busy.

FUNERAL ON SATURDAY

The funeral of Mrs. Angelina Cordisco, widow of Vincenzo Cordisco, who died at her home here yesterday, is to be held on Saturday morning. Funeral will be held from the Cordisco home, 925 Wood street, with Requiem High Mass in St. Ann's Church at 10 o'clock. Burial will be made in St. Mark's Cemetery, with Galzerano, funeral director, in charge.

One Smart Dog

(By "The Stroller")
"Pete" is just about one of the smartest dogs there is—at least in the estimation of his owner, William G. Buckman, Radcliffe street. "Pete," a 10-year-old wire haired Irish terrier, knows how to keep cool, and that is more than some humans do during this unseasonable weather.

The dog, who has been a member of the Buckman household since he was a year old, lies at the front hall door on hot nights. "But as soon as he hears the motor from my air-conditioner he quietly walks up stairs, and waits at the bed-room door to get in and be comfortable for the night," Mr. Buckman informs us.

"CAR-CHASING" BY MOTOR POLICE IS CONDEMNED BY JUDGE

Judge Keller Says The Officers Themselves Are Not To Blame

OTHER COURT CASES

Several Cases Are Heard Involving Drunken Driving

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—"Car-chasing" tactics on the part of Pennsylvania Motor Police was condemned in no uncertain manner yesterday by President Judge Hiram H. Keller at the special October session of Bucks county criminal court.

Judge Keller in no way blamed the officers themselves but he placed the blame on the superior officers and the system in general used in Pennsylvania whereby Motor Policemen trail motorists as far as two or three miles at illegal speeds before "blowing them down."

"I am not blaming the officers, for they are only obeying orders, but I hope the commanding officer will hear about this," Judge Keller remarked.

Comment of this nature was made several times by Judge Keller yesterday. The jurist expressed the opinion "that something is radically wrong with the motor laws when a police officer is allowed to run at the excessive speed for two miles of 60 miles an hour before making the arrest."

One Motor Police explained that the reason motorists are often followed for distances such as a mile or so before making an arrest, is to give them a chance to slow down.

"If there are no other cars ahead and if no lives are being endangered, certainly the proper thing to do is to at least warn a motorist first," Judge Keller replied.

Fourteen cases were disposed of in Judge Keller's court yesterday.

Judge Keller dismissed the appeal of Samuel Gordon, 3016 West Berks St., Phila., and directed that he pay a fine of $10 and costs for speeding on the Lackawanna Trail in Nockamixon Township, on April 20. Earlier in the day he sustained an appeal of an Eckleson business man charged with reckless driving.

Private John Mitchell, of the Doylestown sub-station of Motor Police, testified that he checked Gordon's car at 60 miles an hour for a distance of three quarters of a mile on a straightaway at 11.25 at night.

Gordon testified that the police car was going between 30 and 35 miles an hour when he passed it at about 45 miles an hour. Gordon said that he continued driving at what he thought was "under 50 according to his own speedometer," but when he reached Pipersville he was arrested. Gordon testified that he had his speedometer tested in Philadelphia the following day at the same place the Motor Police have their speedometers tested and that it was found to be okay.

Judge Keller remarked that there was "quite strong" evidence in this case that the speed laws were being violated.

A fine of $100 and costs was imposed on Ivan L. Carr, 44, of Mt. Airy yesterday, by Judge Keller after Carr had pleaded guilty to driving while drunk three miles west of Morrisville on the Lincoln Highway. Carr testified that he had taken three cocktails in Trenton the afternoon that he was arrested. He had no accident. Judge Keller directed Carr to surrender his driver's license for one year. Carr was arrested by Private Lawler, of the South Langhorne sub-station of Motor Police.

Judge Keller yesterday directed that the case of Alexander (Boots) Feusmer, 29, of Lansdale, charged with desertion and non-support by his wife, Thelma, of 316 West Broad street, Quakertown, be continued until December 2 to give the two persons involved "a chance to settle their difference out of court."

Feusmer, who told the Court that he was "a top notch" beer truck driver for a well known Lansdale distributor, has been separated from his wife since July 19, this year. His salary is $35 a week and he has been married seven years.

A CAPTIVE NATION

While Japan was faintly observing her first anniversary in the Axis partnership, Italy was sadly taking stock of a situation far more deplorable. Japan can still choose. For Italy, the hour for choosing has long since passed. Whether she likes it or not, she must walk in the path that her dictator, Mussolini, blazed for her that fateful day when he threw his country into the war on the side of Germany.

From many credible sources come reports that Italy is in Hitler's grip. The Gestapo carry on their operations against all who voice the slightest opposition to Hitler and Mussolini. Rationing of clothing has been ordered in Italy. Buildings may not be heated before December 1, and thereafter only ten hours a day in the northern part of the country and seven hours in the south.

Bread, it has just been announced, must be severely rationed because the wheat crop is far below original estimates. For the Italian people this is no new experience. They have seen their olive oil and their spaghetti transported to Germany to feed their "allies." Gradually they have come to the realization that they are just as much a captive nation as are France and Norway and Poland.

Equally depressing must be the announcement that September has been Italy's blackest month at sea since last March. The British are reported to have sunk twenty-nine troop and supply ships trying to land men and supplies in Africa. Thirty others have been damaged. As with the beginning of winter major operations are expected to begin in Africa, this toll of 200,000 tons of Italian shipping may cause serious curtailment of communications for Axis forces engaged in the Libyan-Egyptian campaign.

If there were any chance of getting out of their plight, the Italian people might grasp it. But Mussolini is a dictator only by surferance of Hitler. Between Nazi demands and Fascist collaboration, the masses are helpless.

And yet, if ever the flame of revolt spread across Europe, there would be ample fuel for it in the hatred and despair of millions of Italians now forced to make vain sacrifices for a cause in which they either do not believe or have no hopes of success.

Government restrictions may soon have all Americans eating and wearing the same things, thus abolishing all incentive to try to keep up with the neighbors.

Will things begin to pop in Russia if the left flank ever begins to crumble?

Germany Blames England For Exchange Failure

Berlin, Oct. 9.—Germany flatly placed the blame on England today for collapse of the proposed exchange of seriously wounded German and British prisoners of war. A semi-official statement said Germany first suggested the exchange last August.

Nazis Consider Campaign Against Soviets Won

Berlin, Oct. 9.—At least a million Soviet troops are hopelessly trapped in the Bryansk sector of the Russian front, the armies of Voroshilov, Budenny and Timoshenko have collapsed and Nazi Germany's gigantic military campaign against the Soviet Union may be considered won, according to official announcements in Berlin today.

Opening up in a full scale of triumphant claims after several days of silence, the Wilhelmstrasse made public the text of a manifesto issued to his troops by Hitler on Oct. 2, announced encirclement of three complete Russian armies at Bryansk and disclosed that Nazi civil administration of vast Russian areas has already begun.

"Our foe will be completely smashed before the winter sets in," Hitler told his soldiers.

The official communique of the German High Command was brief. It merely said that the encircled troops commanded by Marshal Timoshenko in the Bryansk and Vyazma regions total between 60 and 70 divisions. A Soviet division normally amounts to roughly 15,000 men.

But the Fuehrer's proclamation issued just before the huge new series of offensive were launched, and a press chief Dr. Otto Dietrich indicated longly statement issued by Reich that the campaign is all but over.

"Our last great opponent in continental Europe will be eliminated," Hitler said, "and England will suffer a decisive defeat through the loss of her last remaining ally on the continent."

U. S. Army Bombers To "Strike" in Simulated "Raids"

Army bombers were expected to "strike" momentarily at some points in the industrial east today in the first of a series of simulated "raids" to test the nation's air defenses.

Thousands of civilian "spotters" from Boston to North Carolina, and Harrisburg, Pa., to the eastern coast, stood guard at strategic observation posts to spread the warning that bombers were coming.

It was expected the bombers would take off from their fields, swing out toward the Atlantic, and then simulate a raid by an enemy coming in over the coastline to attack inland industrial cities.

It was a test of the skill of the volunteer civilian observers to detect the incoming raiders in their respective areas, each about 5 miles square and of groups of the first interceptor command. Their performances will be watched closely by the Army High Command.

In the chill of 6 a. m., E. S. T., modern minute men took up their posts prepared to "spot" any raiders and pass the word along to filter centers at Harrisburg, and Baltimore, where preliminary collection of reports is made, as well as Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk.

British Concede Russian Situation is Grave

London, Oct. 9.—Gravity of Russia's military situation under the terrific battering of the newest Nazi offensive was conceded by British authorities today.

Soviets Cease Activity On Dnieper River

Endapest, Oct. 9.—A Hungarian bulletin reported today that Soviet troops have "ceased activity" on the Dnieper River front after being encircled by Axis forces.

Large German "Sub" Surrenders

London, Oct. 9.—Surrender of a large German submarine after a "spirited action with His Majesty's armed trawler, Lady Shirley," was announced by the British Admiralty today. The communique said the trawler took 44 German prisoners into Gibraltar after the U-boat sank.

ONLY EXTRA MAZDAS WILL CURE THE BULB-SNATCHING CURSE

PHILADELPHIA ELECTRIC COMPANY

It's an old, old story. You just get the right wattage bulb in a fixture or lamp. Then someone needs it and the game of bulb-snatching is played.

The only solution is to have an extra supply of the Mazda bulbs on hand at all times. And with today's low prices, such foresight is no strain on the purse.

SENATE STENOGRAPHER by MAXWELL THAYER

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

"What's the matter?" Joe asked. "Nothing," she replied. "Nan said it was nice to stay by the fire, meaning us, when I said the bridge was out and she told me that Colburn had told her you were here."

"Hum," Joe murmured and looked into the fire. "How news does travel! That Colburn sure gets around."

Gale said nothing. She had resumed her seat beside him, snuggled close under his arm which had gone around her shoulder almost too automatically.

She was content to gaze at the flames, to watch the reds and blues and yellows chase one another up the chimney. But even fire-dreams can be broken, and Joe was the one to blast this one.

"Seems to me, Colburn's pretty interested in you," he said.

Gale sat up. "Why do you say a thing like that?"

"Oh, no reason, except he was here tonight and then he goes over to Nan's and gets her to invite us to play bridge," Joe said.

They sat for a moment in silence . . . then Joe said he must be on his way and went without even asking for or getting a goodnight kiss.

When Gale awoke early the next morning she wondered if she should have told Joe Nash the whole story about her "business" connections. She put the quotation marks on the word in her own mind. She leaned back on an arm and reviewed the glorious night before, when she and Joe had watched the flames lick up the logs and had dreamed their dreams. She closed her eyes and remembered his almost boyish happiness in being with her—and then the telephone rang. It was Cedric Colburn.

"I'm coming out," he said, and hung up.

Gale burned. A flame of anger flared within her; for Colburn didn't ask if he could. She stamped her foot, threw a pillow on the floor, and then prepared to dress.

What she hated was to permit him to think he could direct her life even in such little things as saying he was coming to see her without first asking if he could. She knew he was used to ordering people about, making up their minds for them, but she had a mind of her own and was definitely going to use it, Colburn or no Colburn.

When Colburn arrived he took the wind out of her sails by being apologetic for disturbing her.

"I wouldn't have been so insistent on coming," he said, "but I wanted to tell you the news, and also I wanted to have something for you that I wouldn't trust to anyone else."

He told her that the detectives had revealed Olmstead correct about Senator Smiley's wife and her boy friend. There was a knock on the door and Gale opened it to Murray. He was surprised at seeing Colburn, but came in and took a seat on the sofa.

"Kinda early for you to call, isn't it, Senator?" Colburn's biting sarcasm came easy for him.

"I was just going to invite Gale to have breakfast with me—"

Colburn stared at him and stared at Gale. "Humph!" he exclaimed, "word that might have meant anything, but sent Gale's temper out of bounds."

She didn't like the implication of that "humph," she didn't like that Colburn, she didn't like this whole proposition. Too many people took too much for granted.

"Now, just you listen to me, Cedric Colburn, the great." She emphasized the last two words, her scorn showing on her face. "I don't like your attitude, I don't like your 'humph.' I don't like your job, I don't like your friends—in fact, there isn't anything I like about you. "Now I don't give a rap whether I work for you or not. I like the money, yes; but I don't like your altitudinous attitude. You can't buy me, and no one else can. I'll do as I please when and where I please. This happens to be my apartment and unless you change your ideas about me, you can get out right now!"

The illustrious lobbyist began to laugh. He laughed and laughed and laughed. He leaned back in a chair and wiped his eyes with his handkerchief.

"I fail to see the joke," protested Gale.

He laughed some more and then, as though wiping a smiling mask from his executive face, he became sober.

"Take it easy, kid!" he began. "Don't get me wrong! I think you're all right. Come down off that high horse now. I'm not figuring you wrong. I like you, see."

By this time Murray was goggled-eyed. He had never heard anyone talk to the masterly Colburn like that before.

"Now, Gale," Murray began in a wheedling voice.

"Please, Senator!" Colburn and Gale said it together. Then they both grinned.

Murray, with some attempt at dignity, rose and said he must get to the office, that he would see Gale there and went out.

Colburn pulled one of his black cigars from his pocket, bit the end off and then paid Gale a compliment by asking her if she minded his smoking it. She shook her head.

From an inner pocket, he took a large envelope and put it on an end table. "You can look at that after I've gone," he said. The green of bills showed through the paper. "It's a well-earned fee."

"Thanks," she said, "but don't leave Senator Murray's wallet or yours in the chair."

He grinned. "Now for a little well-meant advice. You are going to be getting sizeable sums from now on. Let me tell you that the best place to put them in is a safety deposit vault in a bank other than the one in which you bank your regular checks. Rent it under another name and don't let anyone see what you put into the box."

"Always consider this one thing—that, no matter how smart any of us are, we always make mistakes and mistakes are costly. Always be prepared to move at a minute's notice." He paused. "I hope I don't frighten you?"

"No one frightens me." Gale meant it and he knew it.

"All right. Now I'm going to tell you something that only you and I will know for the time being. I'll tell the others later. As I told you, I had a report from our detectives today. We will soon have Senator Smiley in line. His wife has a rendezvous tonight. Does that mean anything to you?"

"Yes."

"What?" he asked.

"It means our bill will move out of committee without opposition."

"Correct. And here's how. I'm instructing our operative tonight to send Smiley an anonymous wire telling him of the trust and giving him specific instructions on how to get there. Smiley won't be here when metropolitan areas will discontinue their councils' warnings and advise 'stay at home,' and our work to expedite any possible exodus at the same time keep open the military roads running through the county."

House Refugees In Bucks If Area Is Bombed

The Bucks county plan: New York bombing is broadcast, 7,000 volunteer road policemen, their stations on main highways, used secondary roads, and at heads. No civilian vehicle would be allowed to cross the military roads. Those designated for refugee evacuation.

Bridges along the Delaware River would direct streams of refugees to jointed roads, or in the event of an extreme fatigue, would send refugees to collecting stations in various towns. At these stations, equipped with medical staffs of physicians and corps of Red Cross nurses, the sick would be tended and the weary escorted to homes in immediate areas.

At proportion of refugees would be Bucks county, and filter through Montgomery and Northampton counties is problematical. Many, it is believed, would find haven in rural Jersey, or digress along the route.

October 10 the volunteer police, and 3,000 women workers, all in charge of Thornton Lewis, chairman, will have an opportunity to go into action during a 25-minute tour in Doylestown and Newtown. The county jail at Doylestown are warning lights, part of a hook-up radiating from a central clearing in Philadelphia. When the test squadrons are sighted at that point an amber bulb will be a preliminary caution signal, which will be followed by a blue flash as the planes seem heading toward Doylestown.

A "raid" appears imminent, a red bulb—the final signal for the volunteer crews to get to work immediately. A white bulb is the signal all-clear.

During the blackout householders will be required to douse lights, or window blinds; all street lamps will be extinguished, and no automobile headlights will be allowed. All traffic through the towns will be halted during the test. A similar blackout will be tried in Quakertown four days later.

an expansion of telephone service. So, too, with defense plants working on orders running over a billion dollars, and with new housing developments to shelter added thousands of workers.

How the challenge is being met was set forth by Philip C. Staples, president of the Bell Co. of Pennsylvania, and by other officials of the company. To all employees there was a call to even greater efforts in the face of staggering demands for telephone service.

Music and unison singing preceded the major addresses made from various cities and heard at all the meetings. A feature was the showing of a motion picture, "The Job Ahead," prepared especially for the rallies by the Bell Company.

At 7:45 p. m., unison singing started, accompanied by a concert orchestra at Philadelphia, heard over the entire network. At 8 p. m., after a fanfare of trumpets, the start of the program was announced by P. L. Schauble, general information manager. Carl R. Freehafer, vice-president and general manager of the Bell Company, then delivered a brief "keynote" address for this area.

Mr. Schauble then introduced F. J. Chesterman, vice-president in charge of operations of the Bell Company, who spoke from Harrisburg. Mr. Chesterman presented Edwin M. Clark, vice-president, personnel, who spoke from Pittsburgh. The next speaker, Mr. Harrison, at Pittsburgh, discussed what the Government expects of the telephone organization. Mr. Chesterman next introduced Mr. Robertson, at Pittsburgh, who told of what the defense manufacturer expects.

Shortly before 9 p. m., Mr. Staples took over and presented General Olmstead, who spoke of what the Army expects, and Admiral Watson, who told of what the Navy expects of the telephone organization.

Mr. Staples then delivered an address—"As the Telephone Organization Sees Its Responsibility." Responses to the company president's talk came in sequence from company executives at Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Timely as tomorrow is "Dive Bomber," the new picture which the Grand Theatre will show starting today. The big Technicolor special tells the story of the Navy's unsung heroes who fly more for science than glory and who made possible the development of diving.

"Dive Bomber," not only pioneers a brand new (to the screen) story field, it sets precedent in a lot of other ways.

Fred MacMurray is co-starred with Errol Flynn, and billing is an even-Stephen matter.

MacMurray is the one who does the flying, dies the hero's death.

BRISTOL THEATRE

If you're in the mood for laughter (and who isn't in these excitement-charged days?) lie yourself to the Bristol Theatre and take a look at "The Man Who Lost Himself." You'll find it one of the hottest packages of comedy in town.

Built along farcical lines, "The Man Who Lost Himself" presents Brian Aherne and Kay Francis in the starring roles.

"Model Wife" is also at the Bristol.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Getley, Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church)

O Father God, we know not what of joy or sorrow this day may contain for us, but we believe Thy grace to be sufficient for its needs, and so we pray that we may appreciate and appropriate that grace so freely given. If sorrow be our lot, let that grace comfort us and make us strong to bear it. If joy be ours, let that grace keep us in humility and dependence upon Thee. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

RITZ THEATRE

What a fashionable finishing school failed to do, love accomplished for Jane Withers, who was at her best in "A Very Young Lady," which opened at the Ritz Theatre last night.

Martha Scott makes her fourth appearance on the screen in "They Dare Not Love," which opened yesterday at the Ritz Theatre with George Brent co-starred.

... SKIN ... PROBLEMS
by Ida
YOUR SKIN NEEDS MOISTURE TO KEEP YOUNG

You've seen Roses after a soft Spring rain, washed clean of every particle of dust. Their color glows fresh and clear; every petal is fine, soft and smooth.

When your skin is at its best it has this same clear, smooth beauty. Allow it to become dry, and, like petals of a flower deprived of moisture, the texture coarsens, color fades and it wilts into lines that spell age.

The precious moisture vital to youthful skin is constantly endangered by the wind, sun and nerve tension. Night and morning recharge your skin with the needed moisture. USE DERMETICS. HYDRONIZED OILS... it revives parched skin as rain refreshes Roses.

See Harsh Skin Bloom... Try one of our Dermetics Complexion Toning Facials, and let us convince you that your complexion gains a lovely petal quality.

12 MORE ATHLETES LEAVE WITH GROUP FROM HERE, OCT. 10

Uncle Sam Laying A Heavy
Hand On Independent
Sports

ALL SPORTS ARE HIT

Basketball, Baseball, Football
Players, Bowler and A
Boxer Are Included

By T. M. Juno

Uncle Sam has already begun to drain the fellows who have been holding up the independent sports in this town. The next contingent of draftees which leave here tomorrow will see twelve more of Bristol athletes leave for training camps.

Included in the group are: four basketball players, four baseball players, two football players, a bowler, and a boxer. Several of the group have participated in both basketball and baseball.

Leading the boys who will soon be wearing the army's khaki instead of a basketball uniform marked "Rohm and Haas" will be the tall Alridge "Angie" Everitt who lives in Middletown Township. Followers of the local cage sport admired the playing of this lanky youngster who finished third in the high scorers of the Bristol Basketball League last season with a total of 134 points or 9.6 points per game.

Only the fact that he lacked good floor work prevented Angie from being an outstanding and spectacular player. He could drop the ball in from under the basket and was used quite a bit on getting the ball on rebounds but when it came to passing "Angie" was out of it.

The Manhattan Soap team will miss the playing of Joseph "Unkie" Gallagher, stellar guard. Gallagher did his best work in the playoffs of last season when the soap-workers lost to the Rohm and Haas team. But it was Gallagher's work during the latter part of the second half which aided the Manhattans to reach the playoffs. Gallagher resides at 617 Corson street.

The Voltz-Texaco five will lose a good steady player in Joe Cahill, of 638 Bath street. Last season was Joe's first in Bristol League competition and he did very well, totaling 81 points, finishing 15th in the individual scoring list and averaging 6.2 per game. Cahill's average was better than many players who had had more experience in the circuit.

Playing on the wooden ways wasn't Joe's only sport for he was also outstanding on the ball field. He played the outfield for Henny Morgan's Auto Boys team and on week-ends was in the outer-garden for Johnny Mulholland's Bristol A. A. team. He is a good hawk on skiers and also a good stickler. Illness prevented him from playing the full season of baseball this year.

The other basketballer who was a substitute on both the Manhattan and Auto Boys teams is John E. Quinn, of 331 Buckley street. Quinn did not see much action.

On the diamond, several faces will be missing next season. The first of these is Johnny Stallone, 932 Jefferson avenue, who guarded second base for the Diamond team and Bristol A. A. this past year. Johnny has been playing the local twilight leagues for the past 8 years, starting when he was 17 years of age.

If averages of the twilight league were compiled, it would most likely show that Johnny was the leader in extra base blows. Almost every game Johnny would come through with an extra-base blow. (Note: Ask St. Ann's about this for it was two triples from Johnny's bat which knocked them out of the first half championship.)

A big, husky Polish lad who looked good behind the plate in his first season of twilight ball is also answering the call of the man with the long, gray beard. He is Andrew "Andy" Kondyria, 254 Hayes street. Andy caught for the Voltz-Texaco team.

St. Ann's A. A. will lose one of its outstanding players in Nick Palumbo, 7 Lincoln avenue. One of the quietest players in the circuit, Nick was a good hitter as well as a fly-shagger. When not playing the outfield, Nick was shifted to the infield and immediately made good. Nick also did some basketball playing with the Franklin Club.

Joe Diamanti's Sporting Club will face a big loss when Frankie Balazs, Edgington, leaves. Frankie has been used in almost every position on the ball field and many games sat on the bench. But this did not dismay the Edgington youth as he was the first to show up on the ball field every game and even did quite a bit of chasing around for ball players who did not show up. Frankie carries two newspapers clipping with him at all times, one stating where he committed four errors in a game and another where he triple cleaned the sacks to win a game for Diamond.

The bowler who is joining Uncle Sam's forces is Clyde Light, 316 Roosevelt street, and the boxer is Almerino "Tally" Scarra, 904 Pond street, a former amateur boxer of the St. Ann's team who only last winter was fighting professionally in the Trenton Arena.

The football players who are to leave are: Anthony "Tony" Caione, a former St. Ann's A. A. wingman who jumped from grammar school into semi-pro football and "Kenny" Dyer, a former center and guard of Bristol High School and St. Ann's.

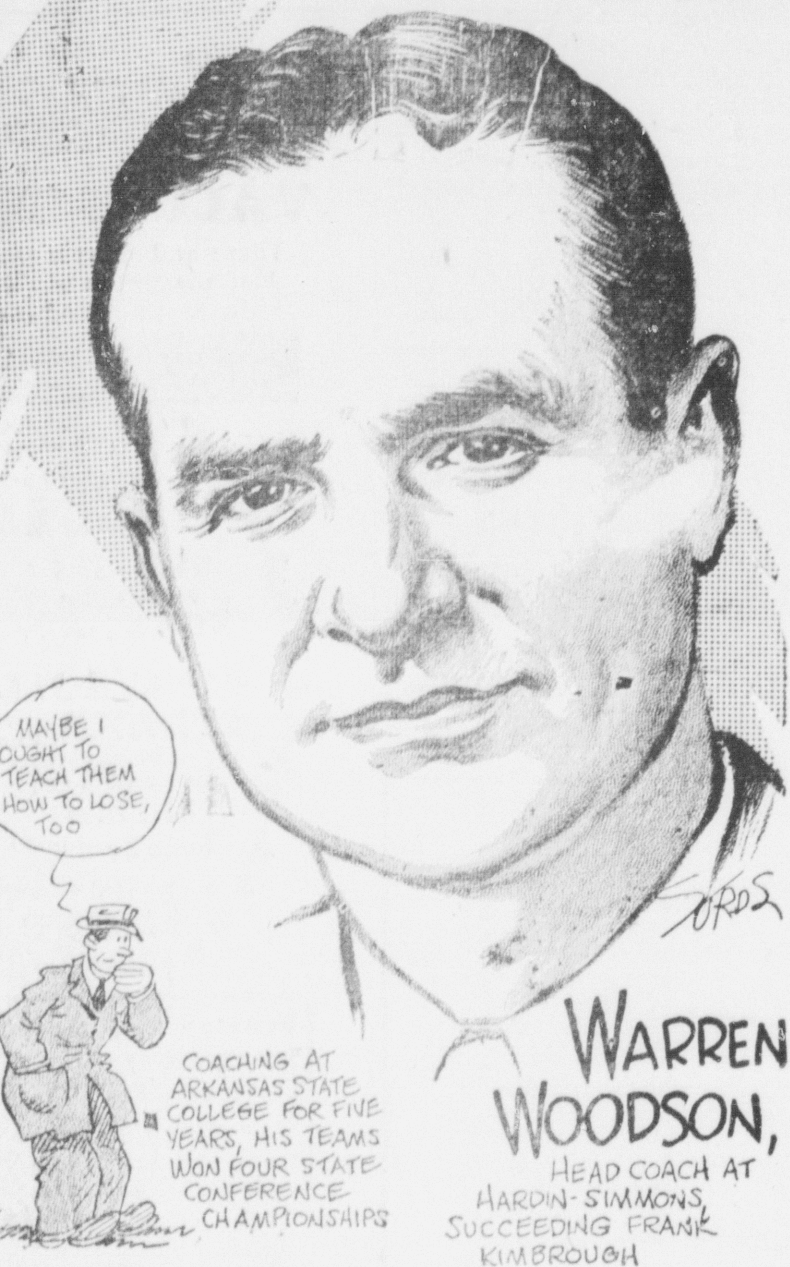

If the army decides to have a basketball team representing the various local boards, the boards from Lower Bucks County will have an outstanding array of talent. For preceding the aforementioned basketball players we have sent "Punkie" Zeffries, Johnny Slaven, Charlie Hughes, and Joe Seneca.

Zeffries who can be listed as Bristol's all-around athlete led the Bristol league in scoring last season with a total of 148 points and averaged 10.5 points per game. He played with Manhattan.

The line-up of Zeffries, Everitt, Slaven, Cahill, and Gallagher amassed a total scoring power of 544 points. And Charlie Hughes who can also be added to the list made 43 points, although he played in but seven games because of an injured back.

If the above team needs a manager, Uncle Sam can go into one of the Texas camps and get Vito Della who managed the Auto Boys team before he volunteered his services. For an assistant, Vito can have Tony Orazi who was assistant manager of the Proty team. And if the team can use a good sports cartoonist, Mike Petrick is in one of the Georgia camps.

But they tell the writer that Johnny "King" Cole is walking around with a 1-A classification and may not be around when basketball season starts. Harry Himmelman is starting the present football season with St. Ann's but he has notified Coach Dougherty that he doesn't expect to be around long for Uncle Sam has his arm out for him and Art Fletcher who played first base for Diamond in baseball expects his call shortly.

McCOLLICK TO BATTLE IT OUT IN TOURNAMENT

William McCollick, Bristol's contribution to the Golden Gloves tournament, is one of the 44 survivors of an entry list of 147 fighters, who are expected to battle it out for the championship in bouts which will be held in the Philadelphia arena Monday night.

Bristol's little 126 pounds of TNT drew another bye last week and moved into the semi-finals along with Leslie Petway, Vineland, holder of last year's crown; Larry Thomas, of Crispus Attucks; and Santo Bucci, Pen-Mar.

"Tarzen" as McCollick is known to his friends will be forced to fight two bouts to be the champion. He will meet one of the above in the first bout early in the evening and then later in the night meet the winner of the remaining two fighters.

Larry Thomas, also one of the remaining contestants for the 126 pound title, has fought in Bristol twice and won each time, one time beating Al Turner, Bristol's popular fighter.

McCollick is training daily in the St. Ann's gym and expects to come back with the crown, the first to come here since Chet Castor won a tournament four years ago.

STATE BUYS LAND FOR GAME PRESERVE

The Pennsylvania Game Commission has purchased 253 acres in West Rock hill township.

President Charles A. Rowe of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen Clubs and the Bucks County Fish, Game and Forestry Association, said that for the past three years the Bucks county sportsmen have been suggesting the purchase of the tract and that he hopes the Upper End sportsmen's clubs will be able to procure options on adjoining lands.

"We would like to bring the tract up to 800 or 1,000 acres," said President Rowe.

FRANKLIN A. C. TO PRACTICE

The Franklin A. C. will hold a football practice session at 7:30 tonight at its club-house, Cedar and Franklin streets. All candidates are requested to report.

SUBURBAN MANAGERS TO MEET

There will be an important meeting of the managers of the Bristol Suburban Baseball League tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Diamond Sporting Goods store, Mill street. All managers are asked to report promptly.

No Game To Be Hunted In Sellersville This Season

SELLERSVILLE, Oct. 9—No game is to be hunted in the borough of Sellersville this season, according to decision reached by the borough councilmen.

That is the verdict unless sportsmen agree to a pre-season "hunt" which will be suggested by Borough Council this week. The idea will be to drive as much of the game as possible out of the borough in the same manner as was used in Reading recently.

Councilmen suggested that the local sportsmen's club gather in a body and drive the game into large nets. After the trapping of the game it can be taken far enough away from the borough so that it will not return to the town before the hunting season. An appeal will be made to the North Penn Game, Fish and Forest Association to conduct the drive during the next three weeks.

Another difficulty which has been facing Borough Council since last March was brought up again. This is the matter of whether there will be enough water to supply the town until the United States Gauge Company puts its recently drilled well into operation. Because of the difficulty in getting instal, the laying of pipes from the well has been delayed. It is likely the company will not have all of its material on hand until November. This will mean that the ban on the wasting of water in the borough will continue for at least one more month.

Stock Silver Lake With Large-Mouth Bass

Good news for local fishermen was received by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association yesterday when word was received that the Pennsylvania Fish Commission stocked Silver Lake this week with 1800 large-mouth bass.

This is the first stocking of Silver Lake with game fish since the lake was built several years ago. The bass were between two inches and three inches in size. Also, 800 yellow perch were placed in the lake, and 600 yellow perch were stocked in the canal.

As a result of the lower water level in the canal, because of the drought, several attempts have been made by local sportsmen to remove the bass and pickered from the canal to Silver Lake, it being feared that if these fish remain in the canal they will not survive the present conditions. Most of the attempts to net them out have proved futile, however, because of the debris on the canal bottom fouling the nets.

A representative of the Fish Commission from the Torresdale Hatchery surveyed the area and suggested that a small dam be raised. Local sportsmen are working on this suggestion.

of the Public School Employees' Retirement Board, addressed the morning session.

A concert by the Sell-Perk High School Band, opened the session in the afternoon, under the direction of Andrew H. Dillman, Sell-Perk music supervisor.

Teachers were greeted this afternoon by Assistant Superintendent Albert C. Rutter.

Of the 17 sectional meetings held in the Doylestown school, none drew more comment and enthusiasm than the social studies group.

A Quakertown High School geography teacher, Clifford A. Reese, a camera fan, showed excellent color films and pictures on a trip he took through Pennsylvania this Summer.

The film, which lasted more than an hour, contains many scenes of historical interest and is an indication of how beauty, art, and interest may be subjected into routine class work.

Jesse Cressman and James Doheny were in charge.

With Earl J. Frick, Doylestown instrumental instructor presiding, a meeting of the music group was held, with Dr. Rosenberry, State Chief of Music, speaking on the problems of the grade teachers and their music program. The issue of credit in music toward graduation was also discussed. A supper conference will be held here October 21, when plans will be made for the county festival.

Mr. Frick and Henrietta Landis presided.

Teachers of the special education group, nurses and hygienists were given an audiometer demonstration, and the problem of defective hearing discussed. They also discussed the appointment of the new psychologist, Ruth Fedder, for Bucks and Lehigh counties. She will begin her duties November 1.

In charge were Jane Meredith, Mary Roberts, Mrs. Amy Bard Johnson, Ruth Stevenson and Lillian V. Kelley.

Other sectional meetings were as follows:

Art, Sara Funk and Melba Lukens in charge; agriculture, Ray Poorbaugh and Ray Hagenbuch presiding; commercial, Mabel Frantz and Marguerite Roth leading; English and librarians, Matrona Walck and Mary Swartzlander, book report discussion; foreign languages, Catherine Fitzgerald and Isabel Davis in charge.

Head teachers, Robert Shafer and George Zarr; home economics, Ada Thut and Ella D. DeWees; Intermediate grades, Mrs. Mae Stringer and Mrs. Margaret Seylar; mathematics and science, Anthony A. Beshel and Charles Beck; physical education and health, Ruth Stevenson and Lillian V. Kelley; physical education and health, Clyde Davis and John Barth; Primary grades, Mrs. Elizabeth VanSant and Amy Fabian; Ungraded rural, Mrs. Mary Stone and Lloyd Yoder; vocational and industrial arts, Robert Brown and J. Perry Brett.
